Dear Mr Weisberg

I write to thank you for personally writing to me a few weeks ago instead of sending me a photocopy of a letter. It really means a great deal to me that one of the leading authorities on the Official Cover-up of the JFK assassination, could write personally. So I thank you.

I am very keen to buy some of your publications and I will do so as soon as my financial situation is more settled!

I am a 24 year old student at Bristol University and I am training to be a teacher of History. I shall (hopefully) graduate in 1993 and then will be qualified to teach 11-18 year olds! A challenge!

Interestingly enough, the History curriculum in England stops on 22-11-1963 - which is very frustrating for me, as you can imagine, maybe I can sneak in a few hours of lessons on the assassination and cover-up.

I hope that one day I shall be able to visit America and stand in Dealey Plaza - a friend of mine did so in June - and I am suitably jealous. Still, all good things come to those who wait.

Dear Ms. Bagust,

Thank you for your letter of the 10th. I appreciate it.

When you order the books it is much better for us if you remit in US currency. There are some bank that provide this service. I do not know whether the International Money Order works that way but if it does, fine.

We are in the country and our bank does not handle international transactions of any size. So if we get what is not US currency or its equivalent it means two added banking charges plus one for the conversion.

Because you are preparing to teach I take the liberty of offering some unsolicited advice. Most of the JFK assassination books are of conspiracy theories and the rest pretend to be factual and are not. The theories can be made exciting and attractive but I know of none that is not faulted. The reader is not in a position, for the most part, to know whether or not the book is factual and with too many, whether or not it is even honest. If you teach your students based on conspiracy-theory books you will be misinforming and misleading them. This means, of course, that you will have been misled and misinformed.

The crime itself was never investigated officially and was not intended to be. I have this solidly with official records of which I got about a third of a million pages by Freedom of Information Act lawsuits. All these records will be a permanent, free public archive at local Hood College, a fine small one. Because there never was any real official investigation there are no leads for private persons to follow.

As you read your way through my books you'll come to quite a bit on this. By the time you are teaching I think it may be possible to obtain a selection of copies of these records from the college, for a nominal sum. They are being used in teaching now, meaning a small but pertinent selection.

All best wishes,

Harold Weisberg
